Nik Paddison

Nik has a background as a youth worker from the UK. He is a trainer of trainers, youth workers, leaders, volunteers and activists in the European youth field. For the last few years he has been working as a fulltime freelance trainer, writer, consultant, copy editor and wearer of odd-socks. He loves developing educational games, activities, theories and approaches related to the youth field in the context of non-formal learning. These days he is living by the sea in Montenegro and trying to live a more Mediterranean lifestyle but that North European mentality keeps getting in the way! Having long breakfasts with a book in the sun, growing herbs (the legal variety) and playing board games are his main hobbies when at home.
