Coaching

PerformanSe has developed a self evaluation on-line questionnaire that returns reports about personal behavioral competencies that constitute the basis for a professional guidance project. It's commonly used to help employability from 16th years old people

Aim:

To help young people to further understand their behavioral competencies and identify their supporting and warning factors necessary to succeed in activities such as: dialogue, debate, supervision, creation, design, administration, management and production.
Understand one's self competencies and motivation in function of a possible job.

Methodology:

The methodology is relational, the personal report will provide suggestions for the development interview.

Step by step process:

To the person is proposed to ask an on line questionnaire. After that a link to the questionnaire can be send by @mail or the person can be assessed in presence using a web connection to the site of PerformanSE.

Once answered the questionnaire the results are immediately available to the assessed and the coachee; a development course can be set.

Materials and resources:

Is necessary to be trained into the PerformanSe competency model and the questionnaire.

Outcomes:

Oriente aim to provide a descriptive report of the competencies of a person. This is very important especially with young people that have no or a short working experience. In this case they often find difficult to describe their competencies or express their capability. A descriptive report about activities such as: supervision, debate, design, dialogue, administration, creation and management as well a sinthesy of the supporting and warning factors for each of them is the helpful starting point of a coaching activity or a profession guidance process.

Evaluation:

The tool is commonly used by bilance of competencies centers as well as universitarian professional guidance centers in Italy and abroad. It's a very reliable evaluation model, scientifically validated, projected to promote a relational methodology to accompany the person to emprove his/her awareness
